

NEW WORK AT HIGH SCHOOL

George Saunders Outlines
'Rotation Plan for Mechanic
Arts

George Saunders, general director of electrical construction at the Ogden high school has returned to Ogden after spending his annual vacation and has outlined a course for high school students for the coming season which will surpass others of past years.

This season the work will be arranged under four different departments—carpentry, mechanical drawing, auto mechanics and electrical construction. Mr. Saunders will have direct charge of the four departments and will supervise the work in the electrical construction. George Bergstrom will have charge of the automobile school; J. W. Connel the mechanical drawing; and Elmer Noall, carpentry.

"The rotation plan will be followed," said Mr. Saunders, "in order that during a single year a student may have an opportunity to test himself out in each of the four departments with a view of finding out in just which he is best adapted."

"For instance, a boy may register for mechanical drawing. He will pursue this subject for two full hours per day for a period of nine weeks; he will then work in the carpentry department for the same length of time after which he will enter the automobile department for a like period, closing the year with nine weeks of work in electrical construction."

Davis Farm Bureau Members Coming Here

The visit of Davis county farm bureau members, with members of the local county organization, delayed some weeks ago when County Agent Thayne of Davis county was injured in an auto accident, will be held Wednesday, September 1, according to an announcement made yesterday.

E. W. Robinson, county agent, is perfecting arrangements for the visit. A large number of people from Davis county are expected to make the trip.

Among the entertainment features for the day will be an inspection of the dairy herd and the school farm at the State Industrial school. Superintendent E. S. Hinkley will be present to greet the visitors.

The Potter Dairy farm will then be visited and the party will then go to Lorin Farr park for luncheon.

Summit Farm Bureau Going to Cache Valley

Members of the Summit County Farm Bureau are expected to arrive in Ogden Thursday, September 2, en route to Cache valley on their annual farm bureau day outing, according to information received at the local farm bureau today.

The party will arrive in Ogden at 10 o'clock, according to the schedule which has been drawn up. E. W. Robinson, county club agent, will meet the party and during their stay in Ogden they will be conducted through the Ogden Packing Plant and the American Can factory.

May Send Delegate to National Meeting

While the local organization of Federal Employees Union 125, is considering sending a delegate to the national convention, to be held at St. Louis during the week starting September 6, no announcement as to who the delegate shall be has yet been made.

The local organization is composed of postoffice employees, the forest service and employees of the bureau of public roads, it is stated.

Receipts of Forest Service Increased

Forest service receipts of District No. 4 for the month ending July 1 reached $30,094.06, an amount exceeding receipts for the same period last year by $972.18. It is reported that the receipts of the entire forest service for July had totaled $259,179.72.

'TIS A SAD TALE OF A MAN, GUN, TWO MAIDS AND HANDFUL OF BEANS

By FLOYD A. TIMMERMAN

This is a story—a true story—of a man, a gun, two maids, and a handful of beans, in the year of 1852.

The scene is laid in Weber county and the closeup is of a house. Inside the kitchen a man is busy rigging up a shotgun so that it points at the door, and a string is arranged from the trigger to the door so that whoever enters will explode the charge and receive the contents of the shotgun.

The man completes his work. The gun points directly at the door. He gives the string a final test and inspection and his lips part in a sinister grin.

The man straightens and listens intently. He hears footsteps approaching and runs to hide. All is quiet.

WOMEN APPROACH
Two women are approaching the door evidently unconscious of the danger that awaits them. One pulls the latch. The door is pulled open. There is a loud explosion and a piercing scream.

This is what really happened in Weber county in the year of 1852, according to the first records that were kept of the probate court. The volume containing the information of the trial of the man which came later, was discovered Saturday by W. J. Young, deputy in the county clerk's office and the volume is believed to be the first to contain any records to be taken of the court by the court clerk.

The case is the first one contained in the old and soiled volume. The official record of the case, as written in the old fashioned handwriting of James A. Browning, contains the information that S. G. Simmons was the man who arranged the gun.

Martha Strong was the woman who received the charge of the weapon, the record states. Simmons was tried in a lower court and then turned over to the probate court where the grand jury returned an indictment against him.

OFFICIAL RECORD
The official record of the case, as written in the old volume, follows:
"Territory of Utah versus S. G. Simmons, February 3, 1852."

WARREN HARDING HERE THREE DAYS; LITTLE STIR MADE

Warren Harding paid Ogden a visit last Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, unknown to the majority of Ogden residents. While in Ogden he took a side trip to Ogden canyon, inspected several plants of the city, chatted with scores of residents of the city but few Ogdenites recognized the visitor.

Being in a city the size of Ogden and going unrecognized is some feat, but it was accomplished by Burley, Idaho. Was it the senator, the candidate for the presidency on the Republican ticket?

"No, nay," it was Warren Harding of Idaho, a representative of the Amalgamated Sugar company, who was in Ogden attending the convention of sugar men held here. Harding claims no relationship to the Republican nomination.

J. E. Davenport, proprietor of the Grill, returned uninjured from a trip through Yellowstone, despite the fact that his automobile plunged over a 12-foot embankment and landed upside down, pinning the occupants of the car to the earth for over twenty minutes.

The accident, Mr. Davenport stated last night, happened at 4:40 o'clock August 10. Defective steering gear caused the car to leave the road and Mr. Davenport, together with two other occupants of the car, plunged to the bottom of the 12-foot grade.

Assistance arrived immediately and it was not long before the car was lifted from Mr. Davenport and his party.

None who were in the car were hurt, aside from minor scratches and bruises. The top and windshield of the car were smashed beyond repair and a week elapsed before the car could be put in shape for further travel.

Davenport said the accident occurred five miles south of the West Thumb, no great distance from the entrance to Yellowstone park.

DO IT NOW— OLDER YOU GET WORSE YOU LOOK

Has your picture been taken recently? If not, why not? This yarn is not for the purpose of soliciting advertising for photo galleries, but a sign on a photograph establishment briefly and forcibly reminds passers of an important item in picture taking.

The sign, which reclines among snapshots of buckaroos, different faces, but the same sombrero, neckerchief and white woolly chaps with the black spots, reads as follows:

"Do it now—The older you get, the worse you look."

Here's a Side Trip Not on the Schedule

Side trips in Yellowstone National park are numerous, according to officials of the park, but the one taken by A. W. Hadley and his mother, Mrs. C. W. Hadley, is one of exception, according to a communication received by the Standard-Examiner from Mr. Hadley.

Mr. Hadley, an Ogden real estate man, is on a tour of Yellowstone, in company with his mother, after an illness of eight months. While en route in the park during the early part of last week, the automobile in which the Hadleys were in turned turtle. The driver of the machine managed to land the car in a hot marsh in Fine Hole basin. No one was injured.

In his communication, Mr. Hadley said in part:
"No eats since morning and less to drink. They're waiting for h— to cool off a bit before salvaging the party submerged. Otherwise the going is fine and Old Faithful continues to function about every 65 minutes."

Detective Moore to Enter Sheriff Race

In response to urgent requests of his friends, Walter L. Moore, Ogden detective, has announced his candidacy as sheriff on the Republican ticket.

Mr. Moore stated that he feels confident of his ability to hold the position. With four years of experience as a police officer for Ogden City, he feels that he can fulfill the requirements necessary for sheriff.

Mr. Moore expressed the opinion that his association with labor men, especially railroad workers, will be of material benefit to him during election. As a former officer in one of the most important of the local railroad organizations, he made scores of friends, he said.

In addition to having served the city in the capacity of an officer, he is, at present, district manager of the Brotherhood of American Yeoman.

Additional Recruits Sign for Navy School

Three additional students for the electrician's school at Mare Island, Cal., were signed yesterday at the Ogden naval recruiting station. The recruits were H. O. Davidson, of Pleasant View; L. R. Wright, of 174 Twenty-second street, Ogden; and J. E. Maxfield, of Salt Lake. All went in for a three year enlistment as apprentice seamen for electrician training.

STOCK JUDGING FOR STUDENTS

Ogden Boys Will Enter Competition During the State Fair

Students of the Ogden city schools and the Ogden high school will be selected during the coming month by instructors of the schools to enter the competitions in the stock judging contests at the annual Utah state fair to be held this year October 4 to 9. A grand encampment of boy project winners will be one of the features of the fair.

The expenses of the boys while attending the state fair will be paid by the state, the railroad fare to be paid by the schools which they represent. More than $200 will be distributed to the boys in the juvenile judging contest.

The boy winning highest honors at the fair this year in the judging contests will be eligible to go to Chicago to represent Utah in the boys' international livestock judging contest, all expenses to be paid. The encampment will be part of the Utah school exhibits this season.

Scouts of the various troops of the state will also attend. The encampment will be conducted with close, careful educational values in view. Every hour will be scheduled and supervised. Scout discipline and methods will prevail. Two students from the Ogden high school will be eligible to enter the judging contests.

'Mulligan Stew' Plan Fails; Youth Arrested

For alleged theft of chickens which were said to have been taken with the view of raising one of the necessary ingredients for a "mulligan stew" for the "gang," Earl Applegate, 15 years old, was arrested this afternoon by Detectives Robert Chambers and W. A. Jones.

Applegate will be turned over to the juvenile authorities. He recently ran away from home, the police report, and for several weeks was sought by police and members of the sheriff's departments throughout the state.

A GOOD PLACE TO TRADE

Fall Garments Here Prices Are Much Lower

Lower prices for women's ready-to-wear garments is assured with the first new shipments of handsome garments that have come to us within the past few days.

That the new suits, coats and dresses have an irresistible charm—that our efforts to choose good styles at moderate prices are meeting with approval is proved by the way in which these new garments are being bought.

Almost as soon as the express brings to us these new garments from their New York makers, are they finding pleased owners. Come to the spacious Second Floor this week for a first glimpse of the best creations for fall and winter wear.

A Sale of Silk Dresses

This sale of silk and wool dresses—all fall styles—at prices much like those expected in after-season sales, is attracting many buyers.

Dresses of taffeta with all of the charm of the attractive fall lines are being offered—and sold—and prices that would seem hardly large enough to pay for the silks used in their making. Better have a look at them tomorrow, $19.50.

A Sale of Silk Blouses

These silk blouses priced at $3.95 are being bought by women who want inexpensive blouses to use between seasons. At these prices there are racks of attractive garments that are easily worth more. The materials are georgette, crepe de chine and tricolette. New shipments refill the racks almost daily. There are sizes for all women. Many styles are trimmed with beads or hand embroidery. See them all at a glance, 2nd Floor.

A Sale of Gingham Frocks

The left over stocks of women's gingham dresses are being sold at a price that is a bit less than half. Most of them being $25 values, now being cleared away at $9.95. These are NOT house dresses, but charming dresses for street, office or home wear, made in styles that are particularly adapted to slender women. The materials are of the very best of gingham and many women are buying them in place of ordinary house dresses.

Millinery Opening

Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday

This week brings the first important exhibition of the correct styles in millinery for the fall and winter season. Indeed it has been difficult to accumulate a great many hats for the showing, so readily are they being bought by women who like to wear the first of the season's new styles.

However the 2nd Floor will present a pleasing picture beginning Tuesday when all of the smart new millinery now received will be arrayed on the tables for easy inspection.

Of course we want you to come for a glimpse whether you are of a mind to buy just now or not. You'll enjoy seeing the display.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Exhibition Days, 2nd Floor.
